

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
~~HARRISONBURG~~ DIVISION
ROANOKE

JAMES BLANKENSHIP,

Plaintiff,

v.

MEAD WESTVACO CORP., et. al.,

Defendants.

Civil Action No. 7:07cv170

MEMORANDUM OPINION

By: Samuel G. Wilson
United States District Judge

Plaintiff James Blankenship filed this action against Mead Westvaco Corporation (Westvaco) and two of its employees, Tom Pasidaro and Carson Proffitt, for injuries Blankenship allegedly suffered after inhaling chlorine dioxide gas while repairing an elevator at Westvaco's premises. He asserts "general negligence," "premises liability," and Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA), 29 U.S.C. § 651 et. seq., claims and asserts that the court has federal question jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 because "OSHA provides the foundational requirement for the standard of care that was breached."¹ The court concludes that it lacks subject matter jurisdiction and dismisses.

I.

In order for the court to have jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, the case must arise "under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States."² Blankenship argues that

¹ Apparently, Blankenship has retreated to this argument because his complaint alleges that "jurisdiction is appropriate in this matter pursuant to violations of 29 U.S.C. § 651, et seq.."

² Since Blankenship's complaint alleges that Blankenship, Pasidaro, and Proffitt are all Virginia residents, complete diversity is lacking and there is no jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a).

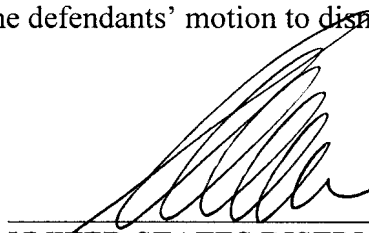

jurisdiction is proper because “OSHA provides the foundational requirement for the standard of care that was breached.” The court will not belabor this matter; even if OSHA provides the “foundational requirement” for the standard of care that was breached, the case still does not arise under the laws of the United States and there is no federal question jurisdiction.

The Fourth Circuit has held, and Blankenship concedes, that OSHA does not create a private right of action, Scarborough v. Aegis Commc’ns Group, Inc., 2000 WL 790965 (4th Cir. 2000) (holding that the district court “correctly determined that there is no private right of action under OSHA”); Byrd v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 496 F.2d 1323 (4th Cir. 1974) (per curiam), and the existence of a private right of action is a “prerequisite for finding federal question jurisdiction.” Smith v. Indus. Valley Title Ins. Co., 957 F.2d 90, 93 (3d Cir. 1992) (applying Merrell Dow Pharm., Inc. v. Thompson, 478 U.S. 804 (1986)). Accordingly, the court grants the defendants’ motion.

II.

For the foregoing reasons, the court grants the defendants’ motion to dismiss.
